ONE MORE THING: How good is it to be catching up on Konga again? Here's a refresher if you're new to it: Konga is a revered Ethiopian coffee, produced near the town of yirgacheffe. (another name which makes coffee lovers weak at the knees.) The Konga co-op's been going since 1975 & is home to nearly 4,000 members. They're growing a vast mix of Ethiopian Heirloom varieties, which thrive at the region's high altitude & earn their distinctive flavours from natural cross-pollination. You'll be conjuring up visions of this sprawling wonderland with each cup.
